AGRICULTURE

(A selected bibliography with annotations)

NOTE:

It is not expected that any hospital or camp will require more than a SMALL PROPORTION of the books on this list.

The list has been made full for headquarters' purposes, and to offer to the hospitals and other agencies a BASIS FOR SELECTIONS that will best meet their individual needs.

The list aims to be fairly representative of the best American books which are neither too elementary nor too specialized for the vocational purposes in view.

It does not claim completeness even within such limits, and the vast amount of valuable matter in bulletins of the DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE and STATE EXPERIMENT STATIONS has been disregarded except in a very few cases where book material is scant. The existence of such material should be kept in mind, especially by instructors dealing with sections of the country to which average textbook treatment is not applicable without modification to fit special conditions of climate or soil.
